What the website says about us...

The Nominations Committee assembles a review panel of Planning Council members to discuss applications for membership.

Using objective criteria, each panel member completes an independent review of every application, including whether or not an applicant reflects the demographics of the local epidemic.

Final review and appointment is determined by the City of Philadelphia's Managing Director's Office. This committee also reviews attendance of current members and enforces attendance policies.

How Nominations Benefits the Community...

COMMUNITY BENEFITS:

- Through the Open Nominations Process, we ensure people impacted by the epidemic are represented and heard
- Through Orientation, we are able to introduce new members to the HIPC community and facilitate a smooth transition
- Through retention efforts, we are able to find out and address the barriers and needs from HIPC members when it comes to being able to attend and prioritize this work

How I Feel I Benefit...

PERSONAL BENEFITS:

- Through our retention efforts, we have the privilege of forming a rapport with members and feeling connected to this group
- We are able to hold ourselves accountable – you are able to look at your own attendance and participation from a new perspective! It helps keep us active in the HIPC
